

CONTENTS

ONE	Framing Convergence Christopher P. Loss and Patrick J. McGuinn	1
TWO	Governance as a Source of Sector Convergence in a Changing Sociopolitical Landscape Kevin J. Dougherty and Jeffrey R. Henig	21
THREE	From Helping the Poor to Helping the Middle Class: The Convergence of Federal K–12 and Higher Education Funding Policy Since 1965 Adam R. Nelson and Nicholas M. Strohl	43
FOUR	Individuality or Community?: Bringing Assessment and Accountability to K–16 Education Arnold F. Shober	67
FIVE	Teacher Policy Under the ESEA and the HEA: A Convergent Trajectory with an Unclear Future Dan Goldhaber and Nate Brown	87
SIX	Institutional Assessment and Accountability Luciana Dar	103
SEVEN	College for All and the Convergence of High School and Community College James Rosenbaum, Caitlin Ahearn, Chenny Ng, and Jiffy Lansing	115
EIGHT	College Access and Opportunity Donnell Butler	137

NINE	Preparing Students for College: Common Core and the Promises and Challenges of Convergence Josipa Roksa	165
TEN	Technology and Education in the United States: Policy, Infrastructure, and Sociomaterial Practice June Ahn and Bradley Quarles	181
ELEVEN	Going Global: How US K–16 Education Is Shaped by “the Rest of the World” Cynthia Miller-Idriss	197
TWELVE	The Future of Convergence Patrick J. McGuinn and Christopher P. Loss	215
	Notes	229
	Acknowledgments	279
	About the Editors	281
	About the Contributors	283
	Index	289